Materials of Patrick J. Buchanan

The Presidential historical materials of Patrick J. Buchanan, initially a Special Assistant and subsequently Consultant to the President for Media Analysis and Speech Writing, are in the custody of the National Archives and Records Administration, under the provisions of Title I of the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-526, 88 Stat. 1695) and implementing regulations. In accordance with the Act and regulations, archivists reviewed the materials to identify personal and private materials and non-historical items; those found have been returned to Buchanan.

Materials covered by the Act have been archivally processed and are described in this register. Items, which are security classified or otherwise restricted under the Act and regulations have been removed and placed in a closed file. A Document Withdrawal Record (GSA Form 7279 or NA Form 14021) with a description of each restricted document has been inserted at the beginning of each folder from which material has been removed. A Document Control Record marks the original position of the withdrawn item. Employees of the National Archives will review periodically the unclassified portions of closed materials for the purpose of opening those, which no longer require restriction. Certain classified documents may be declassified under authority of Executive Order 12958 in response to a Mandatory Review Request (NA Form 14020) submitted by the researcher.

Patrick J. Buchanan

Biographical Note

Patrick Joseph “Pat” Buchanan was born in Washington, D.C. on November 2, 1938. He attended Gonzaga High School and Georgetown University. In 1962, he earned a M.S. degree in Journalism at Columbia University. He began writing for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat in 1962 and became Assistant Editorial Page Editor in 1964.

In 1965, Buchanan worked as an Administrative Assistant at the Nixon, Mudge, Rose, Guthrie, Alexander and Mitchell legal firm in New York City. The following year, he began working on Richard Nixon’s political campaigns in various capacities over the period of 1966 to 1969. His positions included speech writer, research director, press assistant, political aide, and executive assistant to Richard Nixon. During that time, Nixon was a Republican campaigner and later the 1968 Republican presidential candidate.

Following the January 1969 Presidential Inauguration of Richard Nixon, Buchanan became Special Assistant to the President for Media Analysis and Speech Writing. It was during his time as a White House staffer that he married Miss Shelley A. Scarney, a White House receptionist, in 1971. He continued to serve as Special Consultant to the President for Media Analysis and Speech Writing under President Gerald Ford after Nixon’s August 9, 1974 resignation. Buchanan resigned from the White House staff in October 1974.

Buchanan worked extensively as a journalist, columnist and political commentator during the period of 1975 to 2012. His syndicated column for Special Features, Inc. first appeared on March 1, 1975 in the New York Times, Chicago Tribune and New York Daily News. He has appeared on the NBC Radio Network and television programs including The McLaughlin Group, Crossfire and The Capital Gang.

Between 1985 and 1987, Buchanan served Ronald Reagan as Assistant to the President and White House Communications Director. He returned to his syndicated column and commentary work after leaving the Reagan administration. He founded The American Cause conservative educational foundation in 1993.

In both 1992 and 1996, he unsuccessfully sought the Republican Party nomination for President. He left the Republican Party in October 1999 and sought the Reform Party nomination. Buchanan’s desire to be the Reform Party candidate led to enormous division with the Reform Party, which led to two separate party conventions being held at the same time but in different locations within the convention center complex in Long Beach, California. Buchanan eventually won the nomination after a September 2000 ruling by the Federal Election Commission. He came in fourth in the election and subsequently returned to the Republican Party in 2004.

In 2002, Buchanan founded The American Conservative magazine with Scott McConnell and Taki Theodoracopulos. He also began appearing on a new MNSBC channel program, Buchanan and Press, in July of the same year. The program ran until November 2003. Subsequently, he appeared on numerous politically-oriented television programs over the next eight years, including Scarborough Country, Morning Joe, Hardball and The Rachel Maddow Show.

Patrick Buchanan is the author of eight books. The titles of these are: Suicide of a Superpower: Will America Survive to 2025? (2012); Churchill, Hitler, and “The Unnecessary War”: How Britain Lost Its Empire and the West Lost the World (2009); The Death of the West: How Dying Populations and Immigrant Invasions Imperil Our Country and Civilization (2002); State of Emergency: The Third World Invasion and Conquest of America (2007); Day of Reckoning: How Hubris, Ideology, and Greed Are Tearing America Apart (2009); The Great Betrayal: How American Sovereignty and Social Justice are Being Sacrificed to the Gods of the Global Economy (1998); Where the Right Went Wrong: How Neoconservatives Subverted the Reagan Revolution and Hijacked the Bush Presidency (2005); Right from the Beginning (1988).

Scope and Content Note

The materials of Patrick J. Buchanan cover the period from January 21, 1969, to December 31, 1972, and represent the records selected by the personnel of the White House Special Files Unit for inclusion in the Special Files. The remainder of Buchanan's office records, a large amount of which are newspaper clippings and copies of numerous publications, are located in the White House Central Files: Staff Member and Office Files.

Buchanan joined the White House staff as a Special Assistant to the President the day after the 1969 Inauguration. Previously, he had served Richard M. Nixon for three years in a number of capacities. First, when Nixon was active nationally as a campaigner for Republican office seekers, Buchanan was speech writer and research director, press assistant, political aide, and lastly executive assistant. Then, during the presidential campaign of 1968, Buchanan was a speechwriter for both Nixon and Spiro T. Agnew, the vice presidential candidate.

At the White House, Buchanan's assigned duties continued to be related to written communications. For the most part, this was in the form of daily news briefings, background information for press conferences, and political campaign data gathered for partisan purposes in the 1972 election.

Initially, among Buchanan's responsibilities was that of preparing the President's daily News Summary. This in-house news publication of ten to twenty pages was assembled for the President's reading each morning and presented to him in capsule format the foreign and domestic news of the previous day and night. Included were major as well as minor news which Buchanan felt would interest the President and his most senior assistants. To a large extent, the daily News Summary was Buchanan's succinct analysis of the contemporary news media.

Next among Buchanan's duties was the compilation and coordination of background briefing materials for Presidential and a few Vice Presidential press conferences. The briefings--for both the larger, announced press conferences and the smaller, informal ones held in the Oval Office--related to a widespread number of topics and were in the form of probable questions which the White House staff members anticipated news reporters would address to the President. Along with the questions, were answers recommended by Buchanan, other members of the White House staff, and the heads of major departments of the government. The Briefing Book Back-up material was routinely collected for the purpose of presenting to the President or on a rare occasion to the Vice President, information related to contemporary or forthcoming issues and events before either one of them appeared before members of the press. The background material presented was collected from widespread sources within the Administration, from letters, memoranda, studies and reports, straight news, abstracts of published items of interest, and biographical sketches.

An interesting adjunct to the briefing and back-up materials is the collection of printed political campaign materials assembled in September and October 1972 by Buchanan and filed under the sub-series title of A1972 Election File. The purpose of the collection was to provide counteraction against public opinion favorable toward George S. McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential candidate. The end product was a compilation of printed points of record issued under the title of The Assault Book or The Book, and which was critical of McGovern's statements, policy positions, and votes which he made commencing not long before and early into the 1972 presidential campaign. This publication was distributed to Republican field campaigners throughout the nation in order to provide critical opposition to McGovern, using his own words on sensitive topics ranging from abortion to domestic policy social issues to opposition to the Vietnam War and Nixon's foreign policy.

In the Name File portion (in Box 809) of the National Security Council Files, there is a folder on Buchanan, and there is also a transcript of an exit interview with him, conducted on October 10, 1974, shortly before his departure from President Gerald R. Ford's White House staff. Finally, there is a folder of presidential briefing material in original copy and attributed to Buchanan located among the President's Personal Files (in Box 166).

BRIEFING BOOK BACK-UP, 1969-72

Originals, carbons, and electrostatic copies of probable questions which the White House staff felt news reporters could be expected to address to the President at press conferences. Accompanying the questions are recommended answers relating to important events and Administration policy suggested by the White House staff members and the heads of major departments of the government based upon their analysis of subject matter. These questions ranged from the most important topics of national and international policy down to minor issues and events. Arranged chronologically and by major, important subject matter or name of individuals.

Preservation Note: Holdings maintenance was performed on the collection in October 2011 in order to ensure the longevity of the documents. In some instances, the previous number of folders and/or boxes in a collection may have been increased. This finding aid has been updated to reflect any changes. The previous version of the finding aid is available upon request.
