COPYRIGHT AND RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted materials. The various state privacy acts govern the use of materials that document private individuals, groups, and corporations.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a reproduction if the document does not infringe the privacy rights of an individual, group, or corporation. These specified conditions of authorized use include:

- non-commercial and non-profit study, scholarship, research, or teaching
- criticism, commentary, or news reporting
- as a NPS preservation or security copy
- as a research copy for deposit in another institution

If a user later utilizes a copy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," the user may be personally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement. This institution's permission to obtain a photographic, xerographic, digital, or other copy of a document does not indicate permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, sell, distribute, or prepare derivative works from this document without first obtaining permission from the copyright holder and from any private individual, group, or corporation shown or otherwise recorded.

Permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, prepare derivative works from, sell, or otherwise distribute the item must be obtained by the user separately in writing from the holder of the original copyright (or, if the creator is dead, from his/her heirs) as well as from any individual(s), groups, or corporations whose name, image, recorded words, or private information (e.g., employment information) may be reproduced in the source material. The holder of the original copyright is not necessarily the National Park Service. The National Park Service is not legally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement when materials are wrongfully used after being provided to researchers for "fair use."

This institution reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if fulfillment of the order is judged in violation of copyright or federal or state privacy or publicity law.

ADMINISTRATIVE HISTORY

The management of natural resources at Yosemite has evolved as public perception of the environment and National Park Service (NPS) management philosophies changed from management of parks as scenic vistas and recreational areas to management of parks as ecosystems. Beginning in the 1960s, park administration began to view management of natural resources as necessary to restore the ecosystems needed to maintain and preserve the natural resources of Yosemite National Park.

From the 1880s and into the 1950s, early park custodians concentrated their efforts on protecting the large and "showy" mammals, such as deer and bears, as well as ensuring the rivers and lakes were stocked with fish. The NPS increased research studies in Yosemite National Park during the 1920s as scientists sought to understand the park resources, particularly the biological resources. By the 1950s, a shift in natural resources management within the NPS was beginning to occur. The release of the Leopold Report in 1963 suggested the importance of managing parks as "vignettes of primitive America" rather than large scale scenery preservation. As a result, Yosemite launched a wildlife management program which addressed the pressing issues at hand: mounting deer populations, effects of stocking fish, and the food habituation of bears.

The passing of the National Environmental Protection Act (NEPA) in 1969 created a legal mandate for federal agencies to consider the effects on the environment for projects on federal lands or projects undertaken with federal monies. This further prompted the NPS to think about and manage the natural and cultural resources in its custody. By 1972, the Division of Natural Resources Management was created at Yosemite with Richard (Dick) Riegelhuth as division chief. The first natural resources management plan was approved in 1977 and was concerned with four main topics: vegetation resources management, forest pest control, wildlife and fisheries management and the research program.

The branch of Planning, Compliance and Physical Science was established in the Natural Resources Management Division around 1980, headed by Mark Butler. This branch was responsible not only for planning and compliance but also for air resources, water resources, environmental contamination, and integrated pest management activities. The Planning and Compliance Program was placed under the branch of Planning and Compliance around 1994, under the Division of Project Management. At this time, the retitled Physical Science and Landscape Ecology branch, headed by Branch Chief Robert Howard, added the Geographical Information Systems (GIS) and Geology Programs to the Division of Resources Management.

In 1990, park management made a major commitment to establish a comprehensive cultural and natural resource management program to achieve well-defined park goals and resource management objectives. The Resources Management Division was split into two programs: 1) programs responsible for natural resources management, which included vegetation, threatened and endangered species, wildlife and aquatic, planning, compliance, and physical science, and 2) programs responsible for cultural resources management, which included historical, archeological, and architectural functions.

Around 2003, the Resource Management Division was reorganized into the Resources Management and Science Division consisting of six branches. These branches, which include anthropology; history, architecture, and landscapes; physical sciences and landscape ecology; vegetation and ecological restoration; visitor use and social sciences; and wildlife management, provide leadership in managing the natural and cultural resources of the park. While many external influences have affected the change in attitude, philosophy, and approach to NPS resource management during the last century, the overall goal of NPS managers has been to preserve and protect the park resources for the enjoyment of future generations.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

Natural Resources Management Records
1912-2012 (bulk dates: 1960-2000)

CATALOG NUMBER	YOSE 218601
VOLUME	146.1LF (297 boxes of textual material, 10 boxes of photographs, 874 slides, 42 floppy disks, 10 Hi-8 video tape cassettes, one reel of computer tape, 671 index cards, approximately 200 Polaroid photographs, and approximately 315 oversize maps, drawings, architectural plans, and data spreadsheets)
DESCRIPTION	The collection is comprised of records generated by National Park Service staff, primarily duty-stationed at Yosemite National Park, concerning the management of natural resources in the park during the years 1912 to 2012, with the bulk occurring between 1960 and 2000. The material consists of reports, surveys, studies, research data, correspondence, study proposals, articles, administrative documents, plans, maps, research papers, journals, photographs, computer disks, and memorandum relating to natural resources management. Topics include deer and bear management, contaminated lands, air and water quality, planning and compliance, threatened and endangered species, and program administrative records. The majority of materials are reports and data relating to physical science and landscape ecology, wildlife management, and records generated by the office of the division chief during oversight of division functions. A collection of materials from Geographic Information Sciences was accreted to the collection in 2014. Most of these materials are project records, and maps and plans commissioned for various projects.
ORGANIZATION	The Natural Resource Management Records are arranged to reflect the order in which the files were created and maintained as well as the changing organization of the Resources Management Division. The arrangement of the records is by office of origin, record function, and subject (scientific discipline). Four series reflect records of the office/staff member who created and organized the material.

Successive series mirror the current organizational structure of Yosemite's Resource Management and Science Division (RMS). Consequently, the series are: Records of the Office of the Division Chief, Wildlife Management, Physical Science and Landscape Ecology, and Vegetation, (the current branches of the RMS Division that create natural resource documentation), Environmental Compliance, Threatened and Endangered Species, and Scientific Reports and Studies. In 2014, a collection of materials from the program of Geographic Information Sciences were accreted to create Series XI: Projects, and Series XII: Plans and Maps.

PROVENANCE

The collection was principally created by staff responsible for natural resources management between 1966 and 2011, of which many functions are now situated as natural resource branches of the Resources Management and Science Division (RMS). The materials were deposited in the archives in small batches with the majority of the later accessions received from the Physical Science Branch of RMS. The initial deposits were first sent to the records center in the Research Library, accessioned, and then later sent to the archives in El Portal. One of the accessions, YOSE-06826, was donated by a Yosemite staff member after retirement. Another accession was sent from the National Park Service (NPS) Division of Natural Science in Washington DC, and contains research documentation regarding resources in Yosemite that was incorporated and managed in the park divisional records. The collection has a total of 23 accessions.

RESTRICTIONS

While this collection is open to the public, sensitive materials have been flagged and require appropriate permission through the Yosemite archivist to access.

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS

SERIES I: WASO DIVISION OF NATURAL SCIENCE, 1914-1977 (bulk dates: 1959-1974)
1.25 LF

This series includes material compiled by the NPS Division of Natural Science in Washington, D. C. (WASO) that pertains specifically to Yosemite National Park. Oversight of research in Yosemite was initially conducted through the NPS Division of Natural Science headed by the chief scientist and joined by expert scientists in specific areas. However, in 1971 the WASO scientists were transferred to the NPS Regional Offices while supervisory authority was turned over to regional directors or park superintendents. This distinctive group of records consists of Yosemite research files and reflects this change in the status of the natural science program since the files end in 1971.

The series is arranged into two subseries: Natural Sciences Resource Studies Problems (RSP) and Yosemite Natural Science Research.

Subseries A: Yosemite Natural Science Resource Studies Problems (RSP), 1963-1971
.5 LF

The Natural Sciences Resource Studies Problem (RSP) subseries consists of 23 files (out of an original 100) that were requested by the park between 1963 and 1970 and active around 1971 when oversight of the natural science program was shifted from WASO to regional offices. Each study problem is outlined in an RSP report (Form 10-224) by a Yosemite scientist, mainly Assistant Chief Naturalist William Jones and Research Biologist Neal Guse. The problem was reviewed and approved by the superintendent or regional director and then passed along to a NPS specialist to determine if an initial study or additional studies were needed. The NPS chief scientist or assistant director provided the final approval and assigned a RSP number (ex. YOSE-N-44). The form also states recommendations and methods of funding. Other documents contained in an RSP file are research reviews, scientific reports, study proposals, some correspondence, and funding records. Notable studies include bear management, deer ranges, lodgepole needle miner, backcountry management (Sharsmith), human impact on Yosemite's ecosystem (Gibbens), and fire ecology (van Wagtendonk).

The Resource Studies Problem (RSP) files are arranged numerically by RSP number.

Subseries B: Yosemite Natural Science Research, 1914-1977
.75 LF

The research records in this subseries discuss general research activities as well as specific resource study problems. The records are mostly scientific reports, but correspondence, superintendent reports, memorandums, study proposals, status of research projects, survey results, and articles can also be found. Of particular interest are the reports and correspondence between NPS Aquatic Biologist O. L. Wallis and Yosemite scientists regarding fish and fisheries at Yosemite between 1957 and 1971, along with otter observations from 1914 to 1954. Also included are records regarding Yosemite Institute research proposals and programs. Their contract with the NPS allows them to conduct research together for the development of future natural science programs.

The subseries is arranged chronologically.

SERIES II. BIOLOGIST'S MONTHLY REPORTS, 1954-1967
.25 LF

This series is a collection of monthly reports, 1954 to 1967, from the park biologists of Yosemite National Park. The biologists for this set of records are Glenn D. Gallison (September 1954-April 1956), Delmer M. Armstrong (July 1956-December 1962), Robert D. Metherell (February 1963-May 1966), and Neal G. Guse (July 1966-May 1967). The reports are arranged chronologically.

The biologist's monthly reports are one to two typed pages in length and were submitted to the chief ranger to include in his report to the superintendent. The reports for 1954 to 1966 follow a basic outline that includes sections for deer management (population control program, composition counts, etc.), bear management (trapping, tagging, damage control, etc.), fish and fishery management (fishery production, condition of fish, lake surveys, fish planting, etc.), wildlife observations, and a list of general activities (public relations, visitors, trainings, etc.). In 1967, the layout was changed to five major groupings: General (weather, visitors, special activities), Administration (personnel, safety), Conservation, Interpretation and Use (interpretation services, research and observations, protection, forest fire protection, wildlife and fish activities), Resource Planning (cooperation with other agencies), and Public Affairs.

A set of duplicate reports from 1955 to 1956 is accompanied by a cover letter with additional information, such as weather and field trips. Also included are the Biennial Animal Census Report, 1954-1955; Fish Planting Record, November 1954 to October 1955; and the 1955 Flood Damage and Effect on Wildlife Report.

SERIES III. RECORDS OF THE OFFICE OF THE CHIEF OF RESOURCES MANAGEMENT, 1963-2002 (bulk dates: 1972-1991)
12.9 LF

The records in this series were created and compiled by the Office of the Chief of Resources Management. The series contains a variety of administrative materials and addresses a wide range of topics regarding natural resource management in Yosemite National Park. The series is arranged into four subseries: Program Files, Fiscal Records, Chronological Files, and Planning. The subseries were organized by record function and were created according to record groupings originally established by the Office of the Chief of Resources Management.

In 1972 Richard (Dick) Riegelhuth was appointed chief of the Division of Resources Management and was responsible for the administration of the natural resource management program. Riegelhuth was a trained wildlife specialist and held this position until 1988. He was followed by acting chiefs, Stephen Underwood and Len McKenzie (1989-1990), then Leslie (Larry) Pointer (1990-1993). All of these chiefs came from a natural science background and, consequently, this early portion of records is focused on natural resources. Subsequent division chiefs were Henry (Hank) Snyder (circa 1994-1997), and Russ Galipeau (1997-2003). The program records relate to the natural science branches of the division, including: wildlife management, vegetation, environmental planning and compliance, environmental monitoring, and physical sciences.

In 1990 park management made a commitment to establish a comprehensive cultural and natural resource management program to achieve well-defined park goals and resource management objectives. Only a few records regarding cultural resources appear later in this series, in particular the 1993 Resource Management Plan (RMP), which covers the integrated program of natural and cultural resource management. The bulk of the cultural resource management related records are located in Yosemite Collection 1005.

Subseries A: Program Files, 1966-2002 (bulk dates: 1974-1991)
2.3 LF

This subseries comprises a wide array of office records, including administrative and research related records that recount the activities of the resources management program. The files span the years from 1966 through 2002 and were found throughout the collection. However, the majority of the administrative records were maintained by the office of the division chief from 1974 to 1991. Many of these files contain records that were given alphanumeric codes established in the NPS-19 Records Disposition Schedule.

The subseries is arranged in chronological order; however, groupings of coded material within these files were kept in their original order and arranged first by code and then chronologically.

Subseries B: Fiscal, 1963-1989 (bulk dates: 1971-1989)
2.25 LF

This subseries contains administrative records associated with the funding of the Resources Management Program. The bulk of the fiscal records were created and compiled by the division chief of Resources Management from 1971 to 1989. The records were coded according to the NPS-19 Records Disposition Schedule for the Fiscal series (F26 – F38). The subseries is arranged first by alphanumeric code and then chronologically.

The budget files reflect the importance of funding in regards to program administration and natural resources management. Most of the records pertain to budget formulation (F30) and budget execution (F34). The budget formulation records discuss program design, staffing, funding increases/decreases and contain budget calls and Detail of Operation (Program) Requirements (Form 10-237), which justify the annual cost of operating programs. The budget execution records discuss budget requests, project priorities, and proposed fee legislation funding; they consist mainly of program Priority Lists (Form 10-238) along with some project reviews and consequences of not funding priority projects. Other records include cost appropriations, program financial plans (F38) and status of funds reports (F2623).

Fiscal records consist of financial forms, spreadsheets, reports, inter-office memoranda, and correspondence. The correspondence is mainly between Chief Riegelhuth and the Yosemite administrative officer, superintendent, and financial program specialist. Several memoranda are from the NPS Western Region regarding budget protocols, proposals, and decisions. The earliest records from 1963 to 1969 discuss soil and moisture conservation. Further topics covered include maintenance and development, and the major funding reductions from 1981 to 1984.

Subseries C: Chronological Files, 1973-1979, 1984-1991
3.5 LF

This subseries contains the chronological file for the years 1973 to 1979 and 1984 to 1991. The chronological file contains copies of internal park memoranda and outgoing correspondence generated by the Resources Management Division that retain their original order by date. The file contains copies of the original correspondence which in 1976 became the pink carbon copy. This chronological file also includes correspondence from the Yosemite superintendent to the NPS Western Region director regarding natural resource concerns. The subseries is arranged chronologically.

The chronological file covers a variety of topics including projects, personnel, management plans, research, concessions, equipment, and funding. The correspondence comprises communication within the division as well as with other park divisions. Other communication is with local agencies, groups, and universities regarding resource management plans, programs, and policies. In addition, the chronological file includes responses to public queries that pertain to natural resources. Most outgoing correspondence is authored by the Resources Management division chief, resource management specialists, and the Yosemite superintendent.

Subseries D: Planning, 1977-1997
4.85 LF

This subseries contains resource management planning records from 1977 to 1997. The planning and compliance program began as part of the Branch of Planning, Compliance, and Physical Sciences sometime in the early 1980s. Around 1994 it was established as its own program outside of the Resources Management Division and eventually placed under the Division of Project Management. Early plans, including resource management plans for the entire program, were essentially prepared by the Resources Management division chiefs, with assistance from Chief of the Planning, Compliance, and Physical Sciences Branch Mark Butler. However, it should be noted that the management of natural resources is an integral aspect of every park plan and therefore the division assisted in the preparation of many other park plans. The subseries is organized into two topics: resource management program plans, and other park plans that involve resource management; it is arranged chronologically within each topic.

The program plans in this series are comprised of two main resource management plans and their revisions. The 1977 Natural Resources Management Plan and Environmental Assessment concentrates on the management of natural resource issues and projects while the December 1993 Resource Management Plan (RMP) covers the integrated program of natural and cultural resource management. Environmental assessments were completed for these plans. The 1993 RMP provided long-term management direction and a structured approach to accomplishing desired program outcomes through planning and compliance, research, resource protection and preservation, managing visitor use and enhancing experience, mitigating environmental impacts, and educating the public about our natural and cultural heritage. It outlines the program's history, status, and requirements in relation to the overall park and its goals.

The 1993 RMP superseded the earlier 1977 plan and subsequent revisions. Each plan contains project statements that constitute the management action program which implement the resource management plans. The management program takes a shorter view of resource issues and revises project statements and funding programming sheets on an annual basis. The program statements describe current and proposed resource management projects in addition to documenting regular or cyclic management tasks. These working documents helped to evaluate activities and priorities for allocating funds and developing yearly work plans. Records consist of annual revisions, correspondence, original review draft plans with notes, as well as the final, published plan.

The Vegetation Management Plan of 1997 serves as an addendum to the 1993 RMP. Resource management plans other than the program plans such as wildlife management, water resource management, and fire management are mainly prepared by resource management division branches and overseen by the division chief or specialists. In particular, Riegelhuth was essential in authoring the park's prescribed fire, threatened species, and bear management plans. Other park plans that involve resource management include the Backcountry/Wilderness Plan (1969-1973, 1983), the Land Protection Plan (1984, 1986), and the South Fork and Merced Wild and Scenic River Plan (1990).

Subseries E: Weekly Reports, 1992-1993
14 Folders

14 folders containing Resource Management Weekly reports. The reports summarize the various projects occurring in the Division. The material in this subseries came from the office of Jeri Hall.

This sub-subseries is arranged chronologically.

SERIES IV. ENVIRONMENTAL COMPLIANCE RECORDS, 1981-1993
7.45 LF

This series is comprised of a group of records maintained by the branch of Planning, Compliance, and Physical Sciences of the Resources Management Division. The planning and compliance program began with Mark Butler as the branch chief sometime in the early 1980s. The program is responsible for guaranteeing the park takes a planned approach to resource management and for considering the environmental effects of the park's proposed actions. Yosemite is guided by federal and state laws and regulations, most notably the 1969 National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) as well as NPS guidelines and the park's overall management plan. Around 1994 the Compliance Program was established outside of the Resources Management Division, although still headed by Mark Butler. By 1996 the program was placed under the Division of Program Management. The records in this series cover the years 1981 to 1993 with further records located in the collection, Environmental Planning and Compliance Records (Yosemite Archive Collection 1004).

All projects that impact natural and cultural resources in the park must to go through the compliance process according to law. Projects are approved based on environmental analysis of alternatives and the ability of the mitigation measures to alleviate impacts together with analysis of public response. In order to coordinate compliance and planning efforts and ensure proper preparation of NEPA documents, an environmental specialist was hired and a Planning Clearing House Committee was formed in the early 1980s. The committee reviewed all project proposals and determined the necessary compliance process required. They also devised strategies to improve alternatives and suggest actions and mitigating measures as necessary, and provided final clearance to proceed. The committee noted if clearance was granted, conditional, or denied, along with any conceptual recommendations or conditions that must be met. The Environmental Compliance Chairman (Dick Riegelhuth, 1981-September 1988; Stephen Underwood, October 1988- April 1989; Len McKenzie, May-December 1989, Leslie Pointer 1990-1993) provided the final approval.

To accomplish these objectives, the compliance program produced a Request for a Categorical Exclusion (CE), an Environmental Assessment (EA) and/or an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) to identify and analyze resource issues confronting the park. For smaller projects a CE was prepared with an explanation of the project. If approved, the project commenced; otherwise an EA or EIS was prepared. An EA either resulted in a Findings of No Significant Impact (FONSI) signed by the superintendent and the Western Region director, or pointed to the need for an EIS.

The records in this series comprise administrative records, project proposals, compliance reports, impact statements, clearance forms, committee records, correspondence, photographs, and maps. The series is arranged into two subseries according to record function: administrative and project files.

Subseries A: Administrative Files, 1976-1993
.75 LF

This subseries contains administrative files maintained by the Branch of Planning, Compliance, and Physical Sciences, which managed the environmental compliance program. The files contain some records with alphanumeric codes established in the NPS-19 Records Disposition Schedule (A40, C58, D18, L7617, N3615) and include public correspondence, inter-office communications, meeting minutes, reports, evaluations, project proposals, maps, and drawings. The subseries is arranged alphabetically and then chronologically according to function and code.

The majority of the records are either Planning Clearing House Committee meeting minutes or NEPA correspondence files. The correspondence is mainly between the environmental specialist, and the resource management chief, superintendent, and Environmental Compliance Committee in order to coordinate project clearance and compliance needs. The environmental specialist also corresponded with utility companies and the public. In addition, there is correspondence between the superintendent, the Western Region director, and concessioners. Topics include project proposals, compliance approvals, public comments on EAs, committee meetings, human resources, and requests for CEs and EAs.

Subseries B: Project Files, 1981-1993
6.7 LF

This subseries is comprised of project records that include reports, forms, and correspondence generated from the compliance process. These records exist for all proposed projects from 1981 to 1989 and a few larger projects from 1990 to 1993. Project files are arranged by NEPA file number created by the last two numbers of the fiscal year and a consecutive project number (e.g., 85-013) which organizes the subseries chronologically. Those project files without a NEPA file number are organized at the end of the fiscal year.

The two main environmental compliance reports represented in these project files are Categorical Exclusions (CEs) and Environmental Assessments (EAs). The majority of the files are approved CEs, which include a project description along with map or drawing of project location. Some CEs include detailed project plans, utility reports, and architectural drawings. CEs originate from both the NPS and the concessioners and are then submitted to the NPS for compliance. The projects mainly involve the installation and rehabilitation of utility systems (e.g., water, sewer, telephone), building maintenance and expansions, small construction projects, and employee housing improvements. Other noted projects include composting toilet installation, high sierra camp modification, water and air monitoring, archeological test excavation, bear food locker placement, and vegetation restoration.

A few projects each year involve an EA. These project files may also include a Findings of No Significant Impact (FONSI), and impact documentation (e.g., utility reports, resource impact statements, state agency reports). Prominent projects with EAs include Snowmobile Use in Yosemite (1981), Wawona Water System (1981-1982), Yosemite Valley Water System Rehabilitation (1984-1987), Removal and Replacement of Underground Fuel Tanks (1986-1987), Badger Pass Parking Lot (1987), El Portal Housing Project (1985-1989), Rehabilitation of Yosemite Valley Electrical System (1987-1990), Management Plan for Tuolumne River Development Zone (1988), Chiller Building, Ahwahnee Hotel (1989), Yosemite Telecommunications Upgrade and Cellular Phone Towers (1988-1993).

Besides the compliance reports, the project files usually have a signed NEPA clearance form. The files may also contain correspondence about project proposals, clearance conditions, public meetings, and NEPA guidelines and special requirements, especially with regard to threatened and endangered species, archeological sites, historical architecture, and cultural resource considerations. Correspondents include Environmental Specialists Teresa Dunn and Teresa Gross; President Edward Hardy, of Yosemite Park and Curry Company (YP&CC); Concessions Specialist Annette Catamec; the superintendent and members of the Environmental Compliance Committee, most notably Landscape Architect Don Fox; Archeologist Scott Carpenter; Research Scientist Dr. Jan W. van Wagtendonk; Resource Management Specialist Steve Botti; and Curator Dave Forgang. Other documents include news releases, distribution lists, meeting minutes, diagrams, maps, architectural drawings, and photographs.

NOTES: Project date refers to fiscal year not calendar year. A database for compliance tracking is available, ca. 1989.

SERIES V. THREATENED AND ENDANGERED SPECIES, 1964-1988
1.6 LF

This series pertains to the threatened and endangered species, both plant and animal, found in Yosemite National Park. Many of the records were created by the Resources Management Division chief responsible for oversight of the program activities. The series is arranged by record function and divided into two subseries: administrative and endangered plant mapping project. These original groupings cover areas in the vegetation, wildlife, and landscape ecology branches and are arranged chronologically.

The Endangered Species Act of 1973 superseded earlier acts and broadened protection to include plants as well as animals listed by the United States as threatened or endangered. Starting in 1969, the files document the classification and research of wildlife species, growing to embrace the discussion of rare plant species in 1975. The 1973 Act also requires all Federal agencies to implement programs for the conservation of discovered threatened and endangered species and to effectively manage the ecosystems where these species are located. The records document the steps Yosemite has taken to achieve the purposes of this act.

Over the years, the Resources Management Division has formulated a research and monitoring program geared at special species preservation and invasive species management. In 1977 three Federal threatened or endangered species were in Yosemite: Paiute cutthroat trout, southern bald eagle, and the American Peregrine falcon. Species with undetermined status locally included: prairie falcon, prairie pigeon hawk, American osprey, California bighorn sheep, pine marten, Sierra Nevada red fox, and the California wolverine. Other wildlife species mentioned are the Pacific fisher and the great gray owl. Records also include rare plant species research by Dr. Carl Sharsmith, including documentation on Carex (sedges), Eriophyllum (wooly sunflower), Lewisia congdonii (Congdon's lewisia), and Allium yosemitense (Yosemite onion). By the late 1980s, Yosemite was habitat for four endangered species of birds: the bald eagle and peregrine falcon (Federal listing), and the great grey owl and willow flycatcher (state listing). Four state threatened species in Yosemite include three mammals: Sierra Nevada red fox, California bighorn sheep, California wolverine, and one amphibian, limestone salamander. Furthermore, 30 Federal Category 2 candidate species and 20 state species of concern included plants, invertebrates, amphibians, reptiles, birds, fish, and mammals.

NOTE: This series contains sensitive material.

Subseries A: Administration, 1964-1988
1.4 LF

This subseries is comprised of files that were created and compiled by the Resources Management Division staff regarding the administration of the threatened and endangered species program. The files were coded according to the NPS-19 Records Disposition Schedule and include threatened and endangered species management files (N1621), research records related to special status species (N22), and annual reports (N26), as well as some general wildlife management files (N1615) that address wildlife concerns, plans, and goals. The bulk of the records are coded N1621 or N18, which is the earlier code for "plant life" according to the NPS Handbook for File Management, the previous records schedule that was used through 1979. The subseries is arranged first by alphanumeric code and then chronologically.

Types of material include correspondence, reports, lists of species, legislative acts, program guidelines, surveys, research records, area information, and management plans, priorities and goals. Additional records include articles, newsletters, and bulletins. The administrative files cover species that are listed as local, state, or federal threatened, rare, or endangered species with the majority of the material pertaining to the classification, monitoring, and study of those species. Records also include evidence of Yosemite's work with other local, state, and federal land management agencies (e.g., California Department of Fish and Game, Department of the Interior, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service) regarding threatened and endangered species. Of particular importance are the records regarding the Endangered Species Act of 1973 and its influence on resource management in Yosemite. Other topics include candidate species, status of threatened and endangered species, critical habitats, ecosystem management, type localities, California southern bald eagle survey (1978-1982), and the reintroduction of endangered species, specifically the California bighorn sheep (1965).

NOTE: This subseries contains sensitive material.

Subseries B: Endangered Plant Mapping Project, 1975-1977
.2 LF

This subseries consists of an assemblage of maps prepared by Dr. Carl Sharsmith that show locations of rare and endangered plants within Yosemite. The maps comprise two separate groups, each set representing a project with similar maps. The subseries is arranged by map group and then chronologically.

Besides a set of eight annotated USGS maps, the first project includes plant lists and correspondence. The maps consist of one map of Yosemite National Park and Vicinity (32 x 31) and seven smaller quadrangle maps (17 x 21) with plant names, notations, and keys describing the rare plant locations from data compiled by Sharsmith between 1975 and 1977. The location information includes collection data regarding definite or indefinite specimens and whether they were collected before or after 1945. Of particular importance is a letter to Herb Sansum from Sharsmith dated September 9, 1976, that comments on the critical habitat and characteristics of the rare plants in Yosemite that were being considered for threatened and endangered status at the time. Other noted records were lists of rare and endangered plants in Mariposa County, Tuolumne County, and Yosemite National Park by the California Native Plant Society (1977) and handwritten notes by Sharsmith regarding map legends and location data.

The second set of maps contains five quadrangle maps of Yosemite National Park with the names and locations (highlighted in yellow) of endangered plants. The maps have a different style and appear to be from a different project. However, no documentation was found pertaining to these maps except the original box label that designated these maps to be "Sharsmith's Endangered Plant Maps."

Dr. Carl Sharsmith was recognized as an expert on the botany and plant ecology of the Sierra Nevada and Yosemite, in particular. In 1977 when the endangered plant mapping project was finished, he was Emeritus Professor of Botany, California State University. Over the next several decades, Sharsmith would work his summers in Yosemite's high country as a ranger/naturalist and spend the rest of the year teaching botany at various universities.

SERIES VI. WILDLIFE MANAGEMENT, 1922-2003 (bulk dates: 1960-1989)
36.05 LF

The records in this series were created by the Wildlife Management Branch of the Resources Management Division and reflect the administration, planning, and research of this branch. The Wildlife Management Program is responsible for the protection, perpetuation, and restoration of the natural condition of park wildlife.

The series is arranged into five subseries: Program Files, Field Journals, Bear Management, Deer Management, and Aquatic Management. These specific areas were an important focus of wildlife management efforts through the 1980s and were grouped into subseries in order to maintain the original association of both administrative and research-oriented materials. Records that cover the broad spectrum of wildlife management and concerns were organized into the program files subseries.

Subseries A: Program Files, 1929-1990, 1994-1995 (bulk dates: 1961-1989)
1.25 LF

The program files include administrative, documentary, and research-related records that recount the activities and programs of the Wildlife Management Program. Records consist of correspondence, management plans, office forms, fiscal documents, property inventories, newsletters, photographs, maps, and scientific articles and reports prepared by Yosemite staff. The fiscal documents contain program proposals, budget reports, and funding requests for the years 1983 to 1989. The files are arranged chronologically.

Topics include pesticide residue, public dissemination of information, guns and traps, wildlife population control, and wildlife management plans. The fauna discussed include snakes, ptarmigan, owl, bear, deer, and fish. Notable documents include Policies for the Protection and Management of Fish and Wildlife Resources (1959) and Wildlife Management in National Parks (1962-1963), which were the first and second summary of wildlife management activities and programs produced by the National Park Service with the second report released the year of the influential Leopold Report. Of particular interest are correspondence and reports of the NPS Wildlife Division from 1938 to 1942 and a folder of annual wildlife reports from 1929 to 1976. These early reports are mainly a census of species while the latter reports contain a narrative statement.

NOTE: Records dealing with special status wildlife species can be found in Series V: Threatened and Endangered Species.

Subseries B: Field Journals, 1986-1991
.4 LF

This subseries contains photocopies of handwritten field journals kept by the Yosemite staff from 1986 to 1991 with the majority representing the months of June, July, and August. The staff, mainly biological technicians, most likely worked under the wildlife biologist, Jeff Keay. The journals consist of daily records of life in the field. The entries document the date and location of wildlife observations and other field activities. Notes on weather, terrain, and vegetation types are sometimes included. The wildlife observations include mammals, birds, fish and insects. The wildlife activities mentioned range from fish stocking to data analysis, with the capture and tagging of bears representing the primary documentation. The journals are arranged chronologically.

Some of the field journals contain an index of date, location, subject number, and specific wildlife topics compiled by the journal keeper. Of importance is the Field Journal Index for August 1984 to December 1986 that was compiled by Jeff Keay from many field journals that were entered into a Journal Index Database in 1992. This index, and other indices, could be generated from this database and in this manner sorted by location, subject and date.

Subseries C: Bear Management, 1929-2016 (bulk dates: 1960-1996)
41.5 LF

This subseries contains administrative records and data related to bear management in Yosemite National Park. As visitation to the park increased in the 1920s, interaction between people and bears became complex due to overpopulation and visitors feeding bears. By the 1930s, in an attempt to provide a unique experience and prevent dangerous accidents from occurring, the park provided bear feeding sites at garbage dumps.

Management attitudes had dramatically shifted by the 1970s and park managers initiated an effort to revert the black bear to a more natural condition. Approaches included preventing black bears from gaining human food through the introduction of bear-proof dumpsters and lockers, as well as educating the public on food storage. In 1999 Yosemite National Park created the Yosemite Bear Council, a new program under Wildlife Management to further combat the problem of human/bear interaction. The Council consisted of an interdivisional team focused on bear management—stressing that the role of protecting the Yosemite black bear belonged to the entire park. Bear incident reports provide data and information on individual episodes between bears and humans. The remaining data contains information on the interaction between humans and bears, and the attempts to correct the bears' behavior.

This subseries is organized into two sub-subseries according to type of material: Program Files, and Data. Within these sub-subseries, files are arranged into additional sub-sub-subseries, and then chronologically.

Sub-subseries 1: Program Files, 1929-2013
14 LF

Bear management program files contain records that relate to the administration and implementation of bear management in Yosemite National Park. Some files are coded according to the NPS-19 Records Disposition Schedule. Materials include plans, journal articles, reports, fiscal documents, schematics, brochures, guidelines, conference papers, photographs, maps, correspondence, reference materials, and charts relating to handling bear and human interaction. Main topics comprise plans, environmental assessments, and reports on human/bear management in Yosemite National Park. Food storage locker designs and bear activity summary reports, including incidents, and termination guidelines, are also prevalent.

This sub-subseries is topically organized into eight Sub-sub-subseries: Administrative Records, Concessionaire Relations, Field Management, Food Storage, Outreach and Education, Protection Records, Publications, and Media.

NOTE: This sub-subseries contains sensitive material.

Sub-sub-subseries 1: Administrative Records, 1929-2012
5.5 LF

These records encompass planning files, reporting, and partnerships.

This Sub-sub-subseries is organized into 3 Sub-sub-sub-subseries: Human Bear Management Plan, Year End Reporting, and Yosemite Bear Council.

Sub-sub-subseries 2: Concessionaire Relations, 1993-2009
.5 LF

These records pertain to collaborative bear management efforts and communications related to bear management between the Yosemite Bear Team and the Concessionaire.

This Sub-sub-subseries is organized by document type, then chronologically.

Sub-sub-subseries 3: Field Management, 1962-2010 (bulk dates: 1974-2009)
2.5 LF

Documentation from in field studies and bear management efforts. Records include the use of experimental bear management techniques, such as dogs and birth control, as well as medical monitoring and treatments, and planning files related to capture and release and bear hazing.

This Sub-sub-subseries is organized by document type, then chronologically.

Sub-sub-subseries 4: Food Storage, 1962-2011
3 LF

Records pertaining to planning and implementing food storage solutions which prevent bear access to human food. Includes signs and public notices, reports of food storage issues, and dumpster, canister, and bear locker design and implementation.

This Sub-sub-subseries is organized by document type, then chronologically.

Sub-sub-subseries 5: Outreach and Education, 1962-2011
.5 LF

Educational materials, and related planning files and correspondence, which relay information about the bear program to local residents, visitors, and the general public. Documents include posters, handouts, brochures, workshops materials, and videos.

This Sub-sub-subseries is organized by document type, then chronologically.

Sub-sub-subseries 6: Protection Records, 1985-2013 (bulk dates: 1995-2009)
.5 LF

Records pertaining to bear incidents that necessitated law enforcement involvement

This Sub-sub-subseries is organized chronologically.

NOTE: This sub-sub-subseries contains sensitive material.

Sub-sub-subseries 7: Publications, 1942-2015 (bulk dates: 1973-2015)
1 LF

Publications, including news releases, scientific reports, brochures, and articles.

This Sub-sub-subseries is organized chronologically.

Sub-sub-subseries 8: Media, undated
.5 LF

Analog records, content unknown. Includes floppy discs and cassette tapes.

Media needs to be migrated.

Sub-subseries 2: Data, 1969-2016
27.5 LF

Raw data. Includes data taken during field work as well as through scientific study.

Data is arranged into eight Sub-sub-subseries according to type of data collected: Observation Reports, Incident Reports, Wildlife Patrol Logs, Control Action Data, Capture and Tagging Data, Food Storage Data, Bear Scat Data, Bear Hazing.

Sub-sub-subseries 1: Observation Reports, 1979-1988, 1996 (bulk dates: 1996)
1 LF

Completed by law enforcement rangers and bear technicians, observation worksheets provide data on bears behaving unnaturally and becoming habituated to humans. Data includes area of surveillance, type of activity, and visitor actions taken to encourage bears from returning to their unnatural behavior.

This Sub-sub-subseries is arranged chronologically

Sub-sub-subseries 2: Incident Reports, 1969-2016 (bulk dates: 1974-1976, 1984-1988, 1993, 1996-1997)
16.5 LF

This sub-subseries contains worksheets involving bear/human interaction cases. Data on the worksheets contain location, type of event, bear, and damage descriptions as well as any management actions taken. Damage descriptions can include property or personal injury.

This sub-subseries is arranged chronologically from 1972-1997. The years between 1972 through 1973 is further organized by alphabetical code. While the years 1974 through 1975, 1981 through 1988, and 1993 through 1994 is by district: Mather, Valley, Wawona, Big Oak Flak, Backcountry, and Tuolumne. Codes are used for the years 1978 through 1980 (0-743), 1989 (I-IV) and 1995 (Valley A-C, Backcountry IV-V). In addition to this organization, the years 1974, 1978, and 1985 through 1988, are further arranged by incident type such as property or personal injury damage. This sub-subseries also contains one sub-sub-subseries: Backcountry Incidents.

Sub-sub-subseries 1: Backcountry Incidents, 1996-2006

Incidents which occurred in the backcountry. worksheets involving bear/human interaction cases. Data on the worksheets contain location, type of event, bear, and damage descriptions as well as any management actions taken. Damage descriptions can include property or personal injury.

This Sub-sub-subseries is arranged chronologically.

These records were found organized chronologically, separate from other incident reports. They were given their own Sub-sub-sub-subseries to maintain original order.

Sub-subseries 3: Wildlife Patrol Logs, 1995-2006 (bulk dates: 2001-2003)
4 LF

Worksheets relating to patrol activities concerning bears, wildlife, and humans are in this sub-subseries. Completed by law enforcement rangers, bear technicians, and interpretation staff, the worksheets provide information on bear and wildlife incidents as well as lack of human preventative measures to avoid bear/human interactions. Documented cases include improper food storage, and evidence of wildlife intrusion on human areas, focusing on bear activity, but also concerning other animals in the park.

The subseries is organized chronologically.

Sub-subseries 4: Control Action Data, 1973-2012
2.5 LF

This sub-subseries contains data relating to monitoring and attempted rehabilitation of habituated bears. Control action worksheets document habituated bears in Yosemite National Park and contain information on the capture method (dart or trap), capture location, and release location of "problem" bears. Additional information includes a bear "workup," consisting of sex, weight, age, and length measurements of the captured bear. Other tools used to prevent the bears' return to bad behavior, such as aversive conditioning, is also documented.

This sub-subseries is arranged chronologically.

Sub-subseries 5: Capture and Tagging Data, 1968-1989 (bulk dates: 1970-1979)
1 LF

Trapping records between 1969 and 1977 contain data on single bear trap incidents, including date, location, weight, and release date. Capture and tagging records occurring between 1974 -1991 contain more in-depth data, including tag description, sex, age, capture method, and relocation site, in addition to the date and weight. Capture and tagging records from 1969 and 1980 contain individual bear notes as do the Bear Dossiers from 1969 through 1982. Streamer histories between 1976 and 1989 contain a list of tag streamers and their corresponding bear. Of note are the capture and tagging records and bear dossiers which came from David Graber, noted bear biologist.

Capture and tagging data are arranged by topic and then chronologically within topic: Trapping Records, Capture and Tagging Records, Bear Dossiers, and Streamer Histories.

Sub-subseries 6: Food Storage Data, 1979-1981 (bulk dates: 1981)
1 LF

This sub-subseries contains worksheets evaluating food storage in Yosemite National Park backcountry from 1979 to 1987; the bulk occurs in 1981, and the years between 1982 and 1985 are missing. Data include location, storage description, measurements of food storage concerning the counter/ balance method, visitor interaction, successful types of storage, and the description of bear attempts to get food.

Food storage data is arranged chronologically.

Sub-subseries 7: Bear Scat Data, 1974-1980 (bulk dates: 1976-1978)
1.0 LF

Bear scat data is comprised of worksheets relating to scientific studies of bear scat. The data include scat location, weight, age, volume, and types of food in scat (e.g., insects, vegetation, garbage, minerals). Also included are bear scat frequency data which consist of maps with locations and occurrence of scat. Of note is data associated with noted bear biologist David Graber.

This sub-subseries is arranged chronologically.

Sub-subseries 8: Bear Hazing, 2000-2004
.5 LF

Bear hazing logs and Monitoring Alarm Logs. Hazing is a term used to denote when members of the bear management team have to habitually dissuade bears from interacting with humans and human food, or frequenting high human traffic areas, by spooking them with tools such as bean bag guns, or by simply chasing them and making loud noises.

This sub-subseries is arranged chronologically.

Subseries D: Deer Management, 1922-1991 (bulk dates: 1960-1988)
7.35 LF

Subseries D: Deer Management is comprised of administrative records and collected research data. The subseries is arranged into three sub-subseries: Program Files, Composition Counts, and Deer Transect Data.

The primary objective of the deer management program is to maintain and/or restore the mule deer population and range that exists in Yosemite, although most of the herds range outside the park from late fall through spring. Thus, the complexity of deer management involves meeting the needs of the NPS and other federal agencies' mandates, as well as the public and sportsmen. The Yosemite Cooperative Deer Herd Advisory Council and Technological Committee were established in 1970 to cooperatively solve the controversial objectives of various local agencies that are involved in the management of the same herd.

Yosemite's deer reduction program of the 1960s, conducted to balance deer herd population with their summer ranges, met with severe public opposition and criticism. This reaction spurred the need for NPS policies regarding deer herd management to be based on sound biological data obtained from comprehensive field surveys. Therefore, two major areas of research—annual composition counts and transect monitoring—were expanded in the late sixties. The outgrowth of these projects was the development of a long-range management plan to ensure the perpetuation of natural populations and habitats of mule deer.

Sub-subseries 1: Program Files, 1922-1991 (bulk dates: 1960-1983)

4.35 LF

This sub-subseries contains a variety of records used to document the activities of the deer management program at Yosemite National Park. The records include coded and non-coded materials that were created and compiled by wildlife biologists responsible for the deer program. The records are arranged chronologically.

The records are coded according to the NPS-19 Records Retention Schedule with the majority coded N16 or N1625. These files contain mainly correspondence and reports regarding deer studies and the administration of deer management plans and policies. Other materials include annual NPS biologist reports, scientific journal articles, research statistics, maps, posters, stencils, newspaper articles, observations, wildlife management plans, photographs, and deer studies. The earliest records consist mostly of scientific articles prepared by Yosemite and published in Yosemite's Nature Notes or California Fish and Game Journal from 1922 to 1960.

A prominent topic within these records is the deer reduction program in operation from 1963 to 1969. This controversial program prompted the need for improved communication and interagency cooperation, which can be seen in many of the records. Noted NPS policy correspondents include Dick Riegelhuth, Jeff Keay, Neal Guse, and Robert Metherell. Other topics include deer enclosures, deer observations, deer herd areas, food habits and browse conditions, deer health, trapping and tagging program, hunting policies, transect studies, population trends, fire management, vegetation, and herd composition.

Noted documents are the annual California Fish and Game reports,1958-1982; herd composition counts, 1954-1978; Yosemite Deer Reduction Program Report, 1970; Public Hearing Report, 1967; map of deer hunt boundaries, 1965-1968; Plan for California Deer, 1976; Tuolumne Herd Action Plan, 1981; and the Yosemite Wildlife Management Plan, 1954-1965. Of particular importance are the bi-annual meeting minutes of the Yosemite Cooperative Deer Herd Advisory Council and Technological Committee (1969-1983), which compiled deer herd statistics, summary reports, objectives, recommended management practices, and action plans.

Sub-subseries 2: Composition Counts, 1948-1988
1.15 LF

This sub-subseries contains research data compiled on the composition of deer herd populations that range in Yosemite National Park, including the Yosemite and Tuolumne herds. These two herds are part of the Sonora Management Unit that is managed by California's Department of Fish and Game. The composition counts are conducted annually in the spring and fall/winter in cooperation with the California Fish and Game Department and consist almost entirely of deer herd composition count forms produced by the State. Herd composition counts determine herd productivity, fawn mortality, and sex ratios. The ratios, especially the buck-doe and the doe-fawn, are important indicators of the health of a deer herd.

The sub-subseries is arranged first by herd and then chronologically. General records pertaining to both herds are filed at the beginning of the sub-subseries.

NOTE: The composition count data was gathered in 1988 to be entered into a database.

Sub-subseries 3: Deer Transect Data, 1964-1985
1.85 LF

The research data in this sub-subseries relates to transect studies in key deer areas in Yosemite that were established to monitor range conditions and trends together with deer use and hedging. The records pertain to 39 transects and five inspection areas from the period of 1964 to 1985. Original research of the designated areas began in 1964 and was resurveyed in 1970. The permanent deer range transect survey was established in 1971, with additional transects being added in 1973. Limited surveys are made annually to maintain the integrity of trends being documented and to monitor deer use. More detailed readings of transect range conditions were done on a 3-5 year rotational basis.

The records also include data from the 1972 Deer Range Survey. The results showed vegetative improvement and the sustainability of deer use in most areas. However, twenty years of transect data (1964-1984) suggest that browse conditions were deteriorating because of plants reaching climax stage, decreasing plant numbers, and nutrient quality.

Transect data records the condition, age, and number of preferred and staple species on the range and give an overall browse condition rating and browse trend rating. The later records monitor the response and range of herds to natural and prescribed fires. The survey forms consist of the Browse Condition & Trend Summary Record, Cumulative Pellet Count Record, and Browse Transect Record (Form & Age Class Data). In addition to these forms, each transect has a plot description, location maps, U.S. Forest Service Field Map Sheet, and summary reports of the form data that include an overall rating. Some transect records contain photographic documentation from the original survey in 1964.

The sub-subseries is arranged alphabetically by transect, followed by inspection areas and the 1972 survey locations. Each of the study areas consists of a folder of original documents and one of photocopies, which are filed together.

Subseries E: Aquatic Ecology, 1948-1994 (bulk dates: 1948-1955, 1976-1994)
5.0 LF

This subseries contains program files and two independent surveys concerning the aquatic features of the parks. Administrative records contain files related to maintaining fishing in Yosemite National Park. Information includes correspondence with fellow agencies such as California Fish and Wildlife and the Angler's Club.

The Lakes and Rivers Survey was conducted in the 1950s as an effort to determine the habitat and features of the waters in the park and the prospect of creating an acceptable fish habitat. The 1977 Lakes Survey was to determine the status of non-native fish in the lakes and compile data to develop a recreational fisheries management program.

This subseries is arranged into three sub-subseries: Program Files, Lakes and Rivers Survey of the 1950s, and the 1977 Lake Survey.

Sub-subseries 1: Program Files, 1950-1994 (bulk dates: 1980-1994)
1.5 LF

This sub-subseries contains articles, reports, census records, blank forms, correspondence, fishery studies, fisheries management files, evaluation techniques, policies and agreements, programs, brochures, grant applications, plans, agenda, regulations, historical overview, workshop notes, bulletins, proposals, a user manual, newsletters, and guidelines relating to aquatic management, specifically fishing and the promotion of fishing habitats.

Materials of note include the Recreational Fishery Survey, Fishery Management Program Plan, Pathways to Fishing, Yosemite Association, California Sport Fishing Regulations, the Hat Creek Streamside Habitat and Landscape, Urban Streams Restoration Plan, the National Park Service Recreational Fishery Program, and materials from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Important topics include the Merced River Instream Flow Study and Tuolumne River (Hetch Hetchy Project). Of note are reference papers relating to Yellowstone fisheries.

This sub-subseries is organized chronologically.

Sub-subseries 2: Lakes/Rivers Survey, 1951-1953
.75 LF

Between 1951 and 1953, the NPS conducted a survey to evaluate the biological, physical, and geographical conditions of the aquatic areas as well as collect non-native trout distribution data. This information was to be used to determine the future of the Fish Stocking Program in Yosemite National Park. This sub-subseries contains hand-written notes on fish stocking in various lakes, creeks and rivers in Yosemite National Park. Most of the material relates specifically to stocking history. Data include aquatic name, date, fish type, quantity and planting location. Some creel census sheets were included and contain information on the size and source of fish planted.

This sub-subseries is arranged alphabetically by aquatic name from Ackerson Creek to Yosemite Creek.

Sub-subseries 3: 1977 Lake Survey, 1948-1977 (bulk dates: 1948-1955, 1976-1978)

2.75 LF

The 1977 Lake Survey is arranged alphabetically by lake name and includes approximately 102 lakes in Yosemite National Park from Adair Lake to Young Lake.

The purpose of the 1977 survey was to study the lakes which had been stocked with fish within the last 15 years; it was carried out by the NPS between July and October of 1977. The survey includes photographs, fish stocking information, and history compiled from the 1950s survey. Data from the 1977 survey include weather information and vegetation, and animal, fish, and creel census records on the lakes in Yosemite National Park.

SERIES VII. PHYSICAL SCIENCE AND LANDSCAPE ECOLOGY, 1955-2012 (bulk dates: 1984-2000)
57.9 LF

This series is organized into six subseries according to record function and ongoing projects as related to the Physical Science and Landscape Ecology branch. The six subseries are: Program Files, Contaminated Lands, Water Quality, Wastewater Treatment Plant, Air Quality, and Geology. Program records contain files associated with the general management of the Physical Science and Landscape Ecology Program. In addition, Integrated Pest Management files are located in the program files subseries. Contaminated lands, water quality, air quality, and geology records are all generated by the Physical Science Branch.

The materials relate to the various responsibilities of the Physical Science and Landscape Ecology Branch. Series A contains general material related to the entire branch as well as material relating to Integrated Pest Management. The majority of materials are in Series B, which contains reports concerning Contaminated Land records. Series C: Water Quality, Series E: Air Quality, and Series F: Geology represent programs in the Physical Science and Landscape Ecology Branch, while Series D: Waste Water Treatment Plant contains records from an on-going monitoring program for Yosemite National Park.

NOTE: This series contains sensitive materials.

Subseries A: Program Files, 1960-2000 (bulk dates: 1990-1992)
1.5 LF

Program Files are organized into two topics: Resources Management files dating from 1972 to 1994 and Integrated Pest Management files dating from 1960 to 2000. Within these subjects, files are arranged chronologically.

Resources management files include reports, budget files, plans, contract information, project statements, training documents, correspondence, meeting notes, project proposals, opening procedures, objectives, project review, and administration files relating to the various programs in the Physical Science and Landscape Ecology branch.

Important topics include the Mariposa Grove development, the Resources Management Plan, air quality, Sierra summit, Tioga road, Tuolumne, and sound level studies.

The Physical Science branch is charged with controlling pest populations in the park as they interfere with the park purposes. The goals of the Integrated Pest Management program include pest and population monitoring, structural conditions monitoring that contribute to infestations, assessing control methods, and determining procedures to control pests. In addition, the Integrated Pest Management program determines whether chemicals are needed and the appropriate actions to take. The bulk dates for these records are from 1990 to 1992. Integrated Pest Management files include articles, project notes, guides, general background information, manuals, outlines, user logs, control methods, general information, correspondence, project approvals, literature, project procedures, user logs, and project proposals. Important topics include control methods for various pest infestations, correspondence with the Forest Service, technical information for pesticides, fungicides, and other chemicals, and files dealing with non-native flora and fauna species.

Subseries B: Contaminated Lands Records, 1955-2012 (bulk dates: 1984-2000)
44.3 LF

The Contaminated Lands Program deals with the ongoing monitoring of contaminated soil and water in Yosemite National Park and is charged with preventing, mitigating, remediating, and restoring damage from hazardous materials released into the environment. Maintaining compliance with local, state, and federal laws concerning the outside influence of chemicals on National Park Service land is a main priority for the Park Service and is completed by the Physical Science and Landscape Ecology branch.

The files in this subseries concern various federal, state, and local laws governing compliance of waste management including the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA), and the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA). The majority of materials relate to the removal and monitoring of underground storage tanks within Yosemite National Park.

Contaminated lands records are organized into thirteen sub-subseries: Office Files, Hazardous Materials, Concessions, Barium Mine, Pacific Bell, El Portal, Chinquapin, Crane Flat, General Maintenance Area, Tuolumne, Wawona, Yosemite Valley, and Waste Accumulation Area.

Sub-subseries 1: Office Files, 1972-2010 (bulk dates: 1990-2000)
7.15 LF

These files were created by the Physical Science and Landscape Ecology office and contain files relating to the general management of the office and reports on Contaminated Lands.

This sub-subseries is organized into two sub-sub-subseries: General Files which are arranged chronologically and Quarterly Reports which are arranged alphabetical by subject and then chronological.

Sub-sub-subseries a: General Files, 1972-2010 (bulk dates: 1990-2000)
3.9 LF

General files contain correspondence, contracts, memoranda, management policies, plans, drafts, closure requests, recommendations, cleanup liability assessments, landforms, status reports, guides, work-plans, project proposals, summaries, site and safety plans, project statements, inventories, field data, environmental assessments, data sheets, compliance reports, maps, graphs, program files, and environmental audit findings and observations relating to contaminated lands and the various acts that affect projects. Topics include non-specified locations for underground storage tanks (u.s.t), resource facility assessments, and files relating to: the Environmental Protection Act (EPA); Resource Conservation Recovery Act (RCRA); Regional Water Quality Control Board (RWQCB); Environmental Quality Program (EQP); Department of Toxic Substances; above ground storage tanks (a.g.s.t); and Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA).

General Files are arranged chronologically.

Sub-sub-subseries b: Quarterly Reports, 1991-2010 (bulk dates: 1991-2000)
3.25 LF

Quarterly Reports concern information on underground storage tanks compiled on a quarterly basis. The sub-sub-subseries is organized into four subjects: Tuolumne Meadows (2002-2010), Underground Storage Tanks (1991-2002), Yosemite Concession Services (1993-1995), and Yosemite Park and Camp Curry Company (1991-1993), and then chronologically within those topics.

Sub-subseries 2: Hazardous Materials, 1985-2004 (bulk dates: 1990-1995)
1.85 LF

The majority of materials include legislation, survey forms, correspondence, background information, preliminary assessments, and emergency response information. The materials also include regulations, guidelines, memoranda, technical information, management activities, training program materials, natural resource damage assessments, inventories, plans, and safety notes relating to hazardous materials in Yosemite National Park. Important topics include emergency response information for the El Portal Waste Water Treatment Plant, El Portal, Badger Pass, Hodgdon Meadow, Yosemite Valley, and the Baseline dump. Other topics include emergency response information for the Tioga Road Tanker spill, Logging Rig spill, Underground Storage Tank # 40 spill, and Wawona spill. There are six folders on environmental contamination, one folder on emergency response, and one folder on environmental compliance ranging from 1992-1995. These folders contain correspondence, emergency response, and contamination assessments of areas in Yosemite National Park.

This sub-subseries is arranged chronologically.

NOTE: This sub-subseries contains sensitive materials.

Sub-subseries 3: Concessions, 1985-2004 (bulk dates: 1990-1995)
1.0 LF

This sub-subseries contains site information, project proposals, soil notes, waste discharge permits, meeting notes, tank inventories, correspondence, and work plans relating to the non-specified Underground Storage Tanks owned and run by Yosemite Concession Services (Delaware North Company) and the Yosemite Park and Curry Company. It is the duty of Yosemite National Park to ensure compliance with the legal requirements of maintaining an underground storage tank. While independent contractors operate the tanks, the park is still responsible for the damage that may occur to the environment. Important topics include: The Ahwahnee, Badger Pass, and White Wolf Lodge. The Ahwahnee files contain work plans, closure plans, survey data, and bid specification reports. Badger Pass files include closure certificates, soil and groundwater assessments, waste oil tank assessments work plans, and surveys for the Badger Pass Ranger Station, Badger Pass Ski Area, and Tanks 48-57. There are closure reports and work plans for White Wolf Lodge.

The sub-subseries is arranged chronologically.

Sub-subseries 4: Barium Mine, 1984-1998 (bulk dates: 1984-1988, 1992-1994)
1.05 LF

The El Portal Barite Mine is located 1.5 miles west of El Portal in a tributary to the Merced River. Ore was extracted from the mine which was then conveyed across the Merced River for processing at Rancheria Flat. In 1948 the Barium Mine ceased operation and was later purchased for the Yosemite National Park Administration Area. The documentation of acidic water in 1983 led to inclusion of the El Portal Barite Mine in the 1985 Federal Facilities Compliance Program to determine if remediation of the site was needed. In 1991 selected remediation included proper disposal of empty barrels, diversion of acidic water discharge to permeable , rocky slope, stabilization of the eroding waste rock pile, and surface water monitoring.

This sub-subseries contains preliminary geotechnical engineering investigations, mineral commodity reports, soil sample reports, general correspondence, daily construction logs, hazardous waste manifests, contracts, contaminated soil removal reports, historical background information, environmental assessment claims, preliminary assessments and evaluations, investigation reports, soil remediation plans, site inspection reports, cost recovery documents, correspondence, sample blank forms, and photographs relating to the Barium Mine in Yosemite National Park. The majority of materials concern reports on soil samples for the underground storage tank #40.

This sub-subseries is arranged chronologically.

Sub-subseries 5: Pacific Bell, 1955-2004 (bulk dates: 1986-1989, 2002-2004)
1.0 LF

In 1955 Yosemite National Park contracted with the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company to provide services within Yosemite National Park. The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph (currently Pacific Bell) operated a radio site at Yosemite Creek campground until 1975 when the property was sold to the National Park Service. The site contained a cinder block building and an underground storage tank. The underground storage tank (tank site # 53) is located in Tuolumne Meadows and was used to store diesel for the emergency generator. The tank was removed in 1986.

This sub-subseries contains preliminary geotechnical engineering investigations, mineral contracts, plans, reports, correspondence, work plans, memoranda, assessment questionnaires, site information, soil remediation plans, summary reports, and scope of work information relating to and underground storage sites owned by Pacific Bell. Many of the files concern compliance with the Resource Conservation Recovery Act. Important topics include investigations into the former Pacific Bell repeater building underground storage tank near Yosemite Creek and the underground storage tanks located in Tuolumne Meadows. The files are arranged chronologically.

NOTE: This sub-subseries contains sensitive materials.

Sub-subseries 6: El Portal, 1986-2005 (bulk dates: 1990-2002)
4.3 LF

This sub-subseries is organized into two groups: El Portal Landfill files and El Portal general underground storage tank files. Both groups are then arranged chronologically.

The bulk of the files concern the El Portal Landfill. The files contain reports, site characterizations, summary reports, annual reports, closure plans, emergency regulations, notes, preliminary endangerment assessment reports, correspondence, project papers, working copies of final closure and post closure plans, field information, hazardous waste rehabilitation photographs, compliance reports, facility assessments, and soil laboratory results from the years 1987 to 2005. The majority of these materials concern compliance with the Resource Conservation Recovery Act (RCRA) occurring mostly between 1990 and 1994. Important organizations with influence on the El Portal Landfill include California Waste Management Board, Department of Toxic Substances Control Board, and Mariposa County.

The El Portal general area files relate to the El Portal Chevron Station from the years 1993 to 2002. Other topics include El Portal boneyard, residences, warehouse, facilities, railroad flat, administration site, asphalt plant, and underground storage tank # 40. The records include reports, site safety plans, correspondence, inventories, logs, contract files, work plans, financial information, site investigation reports, preliminary investigation reports, and photography relating to underground storage tanks in El Portal for the years 1986-2002.

Sub-subseries 7: Chinquapin, 1986-2004 (bulk dates: 1991-1999)
1.2 LF

Chinquapin files contain tank destruction certificates, closure requests, site information, reports, permits, disposal records, work plans, drawings, notes, permit applications, environmental restoration program contract notes, preliminary investigation reports, request for closure papers, and risk evaluation reports for the old Chevron station, fuel shed, and service station at Chinquapin.

This sub-subseries is arranged chronologically.

Sub-subseries 8: Crane Flat, 1986-1996 (bulk dates: 1991, 1993-1994)
1.0 LF

The sub-subseries contains reports, maps, assessments, site information, plans, remediation files, groundwater discharge permits, closure requests, and soil dispute papers relating to underground storage tanks for the fire lookout, service station, residences, and the Yosemite Institute located at Crane Flat.

This sub-subseries is arranged chronologically.

Sub-subseries 9: General Maintenance Area, 1991-2000
1.0 LF

This sub-subseries contains reports, closure permits, site information, work plans, assessments, cost share information, final remediation plans, work plan notes, site closure reports, and compliance correspondence relating specifically to tanks #67, #44, and the general maintenance area in Yosemite National Park. It is arranged chronologically.

Sub-subseries 10: Tuolumne, 1986-2012 (bulk dates: 1993-1999)
3.5 LF

This sub-subseries includes closure permits and requests, soil surveys, data, work plans, addenda, destruction certificates, reports, site contamination files, final remediation plans, Tuolumne County Air Pollution Control District permit, field season logs, contracts, financial documents, project reports, correspondence, laboratory work, sampling and analysis plan, operating protocols, project files and data relating to underground storage tanks in Tuolumne Meadows. The underground storage tanks in Tuolumne Meadows include the old service station, the old road camp, barn, fuel station, visitor center, and comfort station. The bulk of material relates specifically to underground storage tank # 39 associated with the fueling station and the barn.

This sub-subseries is arranged chronologically.

Sub-subseries 11: Wawona, 1986-2000 (bulk dates: 1986-1989, 1994-2000)
1.5 LF

This sub-subseries contains destruction certificates, permits, site remediation program files, closure plans, surveys, data, correspondence, project proposals, work plans, ground water assessments, disposition records, annual ground water monitoring report, site information, contract modification, and well abatement reports relating to the residencies, wagon shop, south parking lot, duplex, maintenance, service station, waste water treatment plant, mariposa grove, hotel, Degnan bank, Camp Chilnualhna, Vagim property, and golf course in Wawona.

This sub-subseries is arranged chronologically.

Sub-subseries 12: Yosemite Valley, 1986-2012 (bulk dates: 1993-1912)
2.75 LF

The sub-subseries is divided into four distinct areas: Yosemite Valley, Yosemite Village, Curry Village, and the Yosemite Lodge. Specific underground storage tanks in Yosemite Village include the Village garage, Yosemite Village Fast Photo, Village service station, Village store, and Yosemite Village Indian Creek. Underground storage tanks in Yosemite Valley include: the sewer plant, ranger club, clinic, visitor center, administration building, warehouse, Camp Six, stables, Tecoya Dorm, machine shop, maintenance yard, residences, school, carpenter shop, Oak cottage, Nob hill, bathroom, and stables. Yosemite Lodge and Yosemite Lodge kitchen, Camp Curry service station and Curry kitchen are also notable locations with underground storage tanks.

Types of material comprise tank destruction certificates, site remediation program information, data, closure paperwork, work plans, removal reports, survey data, site assessments, groundwater quality survey reports, soil sampling reports, work plans, cost proposals, preliminary site investigation reports, and risk-based corrective actions on the underground storage tanks in the valley.

This sub-subseries is arranged chronologically.

Sub-subseries 13: Waste Accumulation Area, 1987-2010 (bulk dates: 1995-2007)
17.0 LF

Waste Accumulation Areas (WAAs) are sites where underground storage tanks leaked causing soil or groundwater contamination. The files in these sub-subseries contain papers, reports, data, and correspondence regarding investigation of these sites. Sub-sub-subseries A concerns general files relating to dealing with waste accumulation areas. Sub-sub-subseries B contains individual site information, and sub-sub-subseries C soil and moisture sampling data from specific waste accumulation areas in the park.

This sub-subseries is arranged into three sub-sub-subseries: Office Files, Projects, and Soil and Moisture Records.

NOTE: This sub-subseries contains sensitive material.

Sub-sub-subseries a: Program Files, 1987-2010 (bulk dates: 1995-2005)
2.75 LF

Program files include tables, correspondence, inspections, loose papers, inventories, analysis, evaluation, tools, report, site inspections, proposals, fiscal, draft work plans, site listings, site information, solid waste management information, subsurface inspections, field notebook, data, agreements, background information, analytical results, soil samples, facility assessments, compliance work plans, surveys, cost estimates and maps related to waste accumulation areas in Yosemite National Park. Many of the files relate to the Resource Conservation Recovery Act (RCRA), Department of Toxic Substances, and Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA). Topics include archeology near waste accumulation areas, underground storage tanks, Lower Yosemite Creek, Yosemite Village, El Portal Landfill, Tuolumne Meadows, the historic Camp Curry dump, Volgansang, Curry Waste Area, the Cascades Camp, and El Capitan moraine.

Program files are arranged chronologically.

Sub-sub-subseries b: Project Files, 1990-2007 (bulk dates: 1997-2007)
1.5 LF

Individual file folders contain maps, diagrams, notes, and contracts of specific Waste Accumulation Areas, including Aspen Valley, Blister Rust camps, Buena Vista Camp, Big Oak Flat, Camp Six, Chinquapin, El Portal pistol range, El Portal school, Fairview, Gaylor Pit, Givens Creek, Glen Aulin, Hardin Lake, Lake Eleanor, Lyall Fork, May Lake, McSwain Meadows, Merced Lake, Mount Lyall, Middle Clow, Miguel Meadows, Poopenaut Pass, Pothole, Sentinel Dome, Slaughterhouse, Tuolumne Meadows, West Wawona, White Wolf, and Yosemite Creek. Additional folders are labeled from 162 to 189, 258, 265, and 358. The areas of these folders are El Portal Railroad Landfill, May Lake, Tuolumne Meadows Fueling Station, Baseline Blister Rust Camp, Yosemite Creek Pacific Bell, El Portal, Chevron Station, Pothole Dome, Volgelsang, White Wolf, El Capitan, the historic Curry dump, Camp Six, Taft Toe, South Pit, Gaylor, Cascades, Mather dump, Eight Mile, Merced Lake, Empire Meadow, Yosemite Creek campground, McSwaine Meadow, Eleven Mile Blister Rust Camp, Chinquapin, Carl Inn Blister Rust Camp, Yosemite Creek, Pacific Crest Trail, Pohono, Wawona, and Camp Four.

The project files are arranged alphabetically and numerically.

Sub-sub-subseries c: Soil and Moisture Files, 1999-2005 (bulk dates: 2000-2001)
12.75 LF

Soil and Moisture records primarily contain data from samples taken in specific Waste Accumulation Areas (WAAs) which were given an event number. WAAs include the Tuolumne Former Fueling Station, El Portal, Gaylor, Curry Village, Taft Toe, South Pit, Pohono, Vogelsang, Baseline, Mather, Camp Six, El Capitan, Cascade, and the Yosemite Valley Administration building.

Files are arranged numerically by event number one through twenty-nine. Non-numbered folders were placed at the front of the subseries as they predate the event number folders.

Subseries C: Water Quality, 1964-2005 (bulk dates: 1980-2005)
6.1 LF

Water Quality files contain a variety of materials including articles, data, surveys, reports, brochures, maps, correspondence, environmental impact statements, applications, plans, environmental assessments, notebooks, studies, meeting notes, references, program notes, analysis, outlines, and regional information relating to Yosemite National Park. The Water Resources Program has been driven by prominent issues affecting Yosemite National Park, evidenced in federal, state, county, and public opinion. Subjects such as the Hetch Hetchy water system, the Merced and Tuolumne Wild and Scenic Rivers, water management, watershed protection, wetland delineation, and Yosemite well information are all leading issues for the Water Quality Program. The Water Quality Program maintains the purity of surface and ground water, confirms compliance of the Wild and Scenic Rivers legislation, protects the natural wetlands and floodplains of the park, and confirms jurisdiction and water rights within the park.

This subseries is arranged alphabetically by subject and then chronologically.

Subseries D: Wastewater Treatment Plant Monitoring, 1986-2000 (bulk dates: 1993-1998)
.75 LF

Built between 1974 and 1977, The Yosemite Wastewater Treatment Plant replaced the former Rancheria Flat plant. Managing the wastewater from El Portal and Yosemite Valley, the plant was upgraded in 1989 and 1997. The materials in this subseries contain a sludge de-watering evaluation, an installation and sampling report, data, ground-water monitoring program documents, well plans, well installation documents, and ground water monitoring summary, status, and compliance reports relating to the waste water treatment facility in El Portal for the years after the 1989 and 1997 upgrades.

This subseries is arranged chronologically.

Subseries E: Air Quality, 1970-1999 (bulk dates: 1990-1998)
5.6 LF

The purpose of the Air Quality Program is to preserve, protect, and enhance the air quality in and around Yosemite National Park. Technicians manage air quality through monitoring air pollutants, measuring the effects on the environment, communicating results, and mitigating internal sources of air pollution.

Air quality records are organized into four main subjects: ozone database data, air quality annual data summaries, general air pollution records, and fire and smoke information; they are arranged chronologically. The data summaries for Camp Mather, Wawona, and Turtleback Dome are located at the end of their subjects while the summaries for Yosemite Valley and Yosemite National Park are located after Turtleback Dome.

The records relating to the ozone database data include ozone data sheets, reports, correspondence, brochures, field notes, studies, plans, and notes relating to air quality in Yosemite National Park. The majority of this data relates to ozone levels in three specific areas: Camp Mather, Wawona, and Turtleback Dome. Within these areas, data is arranged chronologically, Camp Mather having materials from 1989-1994, and Wawona Valley from 1986-1994 and 2001. Turtleback Dome data was collected in 1998 and is organized by month. Air quality annual data summaries contain air quality data for the years 1994 and 1998 for Camp Mather, Wawona, Turtleback Dome, Yosemite Valley, and all of Yosemite National Park.
General air pollution documents include correspondence and field notes on air quality while fire and smoke information contains prescribed burn plans, notes, fire history information, correspondence, air quality monitoring data report, brochures, and files concerning the Interagency Air and Smoke Council. Additionally, computer tape from the Boise Interagency Fire Center for automated lightning detector system data for the Yosemite Area for 1985-1986 and videotapes from May to August 1992 are also included. The fire and air quality program are closely related due to the impact of smoke on air quality.

Subseries F: Geology, 1942, 2006
.2 LF

This subseries contains two folders on geology in Yosemite National Park. One folder is a notebook on the scheelite deposits in Dorothy Lake from 1942. The majority of material includes surveys, incident plans, and notes on the Ferguson rockslide of 2006. The files are arranged chronologically.

SERIES VIII. VEGETATION, 1978, 1981, 1994-1997
.4 LF

The vegetation in Yosemite National Park is a significant aspect of the biological diversity of the park and plays a dynamic role in maintaining ecosystem health. The vegetation management program began in the late 1980s under the direction of the Resources Management Division with the park vegetation ecologist as the primary coordinator for planning and implementation of vegetation projects.

Projects during the 1980s included mapping plant communities, surveying threatened and endangered plant species, revising the vegetation classification map of Yosemite Valley, and scientific research of fire management and the effectiveness of prescribed burning. Mapping of plant communities, as well as research regarding ecological restoration and the impact of invasive species occurred in the 1990s. The objectives discussed in the Natural Resource Management Plan of 1993 were more clearly defined in the Vegetation Management Plan of 1997, a copy of which is included in this series. Other materials are scientific reports and photographs of Yosemite Valley from 1978.

The series is arranged chronologically.

Note: Additional records regarding vegetation can be found in Series V: Threatened and Endangered Species.

SERIES IX. RESEARCH BIOLOGIST'S RESEARCH FILES, 1933, 1958, 1962-2000 (bulk dates: 1971-1983)
5.0 LF

This series contains the research files of James M. (Jim) Benedict, the research biologist for Yosemite National Park from 1972 to 1983. Initially he was the research assistant to Dr. Jan W. van Wagtendonk, Yosemite's noted research scientist, and by 1980, he was Yosemite's research biologist, a position he held until 1983 when he became the natural resource management specialist at Voyaguers National Park in Minnesota. Jim Benedict retired from the park service in 2005. These research files were compiled in support of research he conducted over his career with the bulk of materials concerning his research on natural resource management in Yosemite. Only reference materials pertinent to Yosemite were retained in this series; however, photocopies of material not related to Yosemite were kept. The files are arranged alphabetically.

The general objective of the natural resource research program is the accumulation of scientific information concerning park ecosystems and the effective management and classification of these ecosystems, as well as the evaluation of visitation impacts, both sociological and ecological, on the natural resources. Jim Benedict's research highlights these concepts, particularly in relation to wilderness areas. The records reference the Wilderness Act that was passed in 1964 protecting federal lands and creating the National Wilderness Preservation System. Wilderness became an important area of research in the 1970s, culminating in nearly 95 percent of Yosemite designated by Congress as Wilderness in 1984. Overall, the central topics covered in these files are backcountry use, ecological impacts, wilderness conditions and preservation, the Wilderness Area Simulation Model, wilderness designation, wilderness management plans and policies, social-psychological effects of wilderness use, general park management, vegetation mapping, bear management, forest ecology, and fire management.

The research files comprise technical reports of the United States Forest Service (USFS), published research papers, and scientific articles. Primarily printed material, the files contain reprints, offprints, typescripts, conference publications, books, plans, brochures, newsletters, pamphlets, booklets, newspaper clippings, and maps. Several records have been underlined by Benedict. Of particular interest is the documentation for projects that Jim Benedict collaborated on with Dr. Jan W. van Wagtendonk: the Backcountry Carrying Capacity Study (1973-1976) resulting in trailhead quotas; the Backcountry Transit Time Study (1974-1978) culminating in backcountry and travel zones and Benedict's article, "Travel Time Variation on Backcountry Trails" (1978); Vegetation Impact Analysis System Study (1981) with a research proposal, Vegetation Analysis for Fire and Wildlife Management in Yosemite, written by van Wagtendonk and Benedict eventually leading to the development of a Geographic Information System (GIS) and classification system for a future vegetation mapping project. These records include project statements, data sheets, supporting articles and papers, correspondence, notes, maps, and reports.

Other noted documents include the Backcountry Use Study for Yosemite (1969); Yosemite Human/Bear Management Plans (1973, 1978, 1979, 1982); Wilderness Recommendation for Yosemite (1972); Yosemite Proposed Wilderness Areas—Final Environmental Statement (1973); and quite a few Yosemite backcountry plans (1964-1978). Also of interest is the article, "Bear-Proofing Campsites at Voyaguers National Park" by Jim Benedict (1986), a product of his research on bear management (food storage, capture and tagging, relocation, etc.) conducted at Voyaguers National Park from 1984 to 1988.

SERIES X. SCIENTIFIC REPORTS AND STUDIES, 1912-2000
1.75 LF

This series is comprised of scientific reports and studies concerning the management and research of natural resources in Yosemite and was added to allow for the organization of specific material types found throughout the collection. The material was accumulated mainly by Resources Management Division Chief Dick Riegelhuth; Yosemite's Wildlife Biologists Jake Metherwell and Dale Harms; and the NPS chief scientists for the Yosemite file. The series is organized by subject and arranged alphabetically.

Research papers, scientific reports, reprints of journal articles, scientific studies, resource management plans, environmental impact statements, environmental assessments, magazine articles, and brochures comprise the published and unpublished material in this series. Studies from surrounding areas and the state of California, such as plans and environmental compliance reports from neighboring national forests and communities, are included because of overlap of resource management responsibilities. Yosemite scientific reports are often prepared by park staff in conjunction with other agencies (U. S. Department of Interior, National Park Service, U. S. Geological Society, California Department of Fish and Game) with some being part of the Cooperative National Park Resources Studies Unit. Many of the journal articles are from Yosemite's Nature Notes, California Fish and Game Journal, and the Sierra Club Bulletin. Also included are informative pamphlets on animals and plants in Yosemite, which were special publications of Yosemite's Nature Notes.

A variety of natural resource subjects are discussed and analyzed in these reports including vegetation, fish and fisheries, birds, mammals, wildlife management, water resources, pesticide effects, geology, and fire management. Many of the studies on mammals involve deer herd management in and around Yosemite, as well as elk management in Yellowstone National Park, a prominent topic during the 1960s.

NOTE: Many NPS research reports are available through the NPS Technical Information Center (TIC) database.

SERIES XI. PROJECTS, 1975-1989, 1992-2009 (bulk dates: 1997-1999)
21.0 LF

This series is comprised of materials related to specific projects within the Division of Resources Management and Science. Many of the Yosemite National Park projects require the expertise of various disciplines and as a result include files originating from multiply branches, divisions, and external institutions. Each distinct project is being arranged into separate subseries as they are accreted to the collection.

Subseries A: Vegetation Mapping Project, 1975-1989, 1992-2009 (bulk dates: 1997-1999)
21.0 LF

In 1993, the National Park Service and the United States Geological Survey, Biological Resources Division, undertook a pilot program to develop a uniform vegetation classification methodology and provide baseline data on the state of vegetation in the National Parks. Between 1996 and 2003, work to complete a modern vegetation map of Yosemite National Park and its environs was carried out with a final map expected in 2004. Joe Meyer of the Natural Resource Management Division served as project manager, with Peggy Moore of the United States Geological Survey serving as the intellectual force of the project, and Todd Keeler-Wolf of the California Department of Fish and Game in charge of the vegetation classification. The bulk of the field work was carried out by the Nature Conservancy and later NatureServe, with Aerial Information System performing aerial photography. For more information on this project see the Yosemite National Park Vegetation Classification and Mapping Project Report: Natural Resource Technical Report NPS/YOSE/NRTR—2012/598

This subseries contains project files comprised of budget forms, contract modifications, correspondence, project proposals, prospectus, meeting minutes, historical notes, field notes, guidelines, and procedures. In addition, accuracy assessment forms, plot survey forms with photographs and slides, map overlays, and aerial photographs are also included in this subseries.

The Vegetation Mapping Project subseries' is arranged into five sub-subseries: Project Files, Accuracy Assessment Forms, Plot Survey Forms, Map Overlays, and Aerial Photography which reflect the original organization of the records.

Sub-subseries 1: Project Files, 1975-1989, 1993-2001 (bulk dates: 1997-2001)
1.0 LF

This sub-subseries is comprised of files associated with the implementation and management of the Vegetation Mapping Project. Project files contain administration papers including the project initiative proposal, property acquisition paperwork, project draft prospectus, funding correspondence, and budget and meeting notes. External contract files, such as task orders, deliverables, contract modifications, correspondence, meeting minutes, and presentations for the associated project vendors for the Digital Database Development (Environmental Systems Research Institute), and Aerial Photography (Photo Science) are also included in this sub-subseries. Additional records consist of field work correspondence, field work meeting notes, geology notes, Toiyabe National Forest fire history notes, Inyo National Forest contacts, grandsect sampling and mapping data, photo interpretation task orders and deliverables, plot photography preservation guidelines, and accuracy assessment procedures. The Project Files sub-subseries also contains data analysis documents, such as the Classification of the Vegetation of Yosemite National Park and Surrounding Environs, Yosemite Vegetation Communities, Standardized National Vegetation Classification System, and notes on the Vegetation Management Plan. Two labeled but empty folders, Sierra National Forest and Stanislaus National Forest, are also located in this series.

This sub-subseries is arranged alphabetically by folder title.

Sub-subseries 2: Accuracy Assessment Forms, 2002-2003, 2009
3.0 LF

This sub-subseries is comprised of accuracy assessment field forms containing information relating to vegetation plots in Yosemite National Park and the surrounding area. The data forms provide information documenting the survey area, vegetated environment, and surface (rock, litter, sand, soil).

There are three major groupings of these forms: 2002, 2003, and the 2009 Yosemite Forest Dynamics Plot: Tree, Shrub and Snag Data. The National Park Classification System is located in a folder at the beginning of the series. The 2003 group of records includes additional copies of the accuracy assessment data forms organized by week and surveyor.

Original order is maintained for this sub-subseries which is arranged numerically by year and then code with the 2009 Yosemite Forest Dynamic Plot: Tree, Shrub and Snag Data forms coded alphanumerically.

Sub-subseries 3: Plot Survey Forms, 1998-1999
6.0 LF

This sub-subseries is comprised of plot survey forms, 4" x 6" photographs, and slides. The survey forms provide information on the specific plots being surveyed, such as directions to the plot, environmental description, animal evidence, and a list of vegetation. An overview of the survey plot forms arrangement is located in a folder at the beginning of the sub-subseries.

The survey forms are kept in their original arrangement of three separate designations: "K", "M", and "S". These forms are further organized within their designation by a numeric code. Most of the survey forms contain attached photographs. In addition, loose photographs are found in album binders at the end of their respective sections. Roughly 850 slides are located at the end of the "K" section due to originating from the "K" form box.

Sub-subseries 4: Map Overlays, 1999-2002 (bulk 2001-2002)
3.50 LF

This sub-subseries contains map overlays of Yosemite National Park and surrounding areas. In addition to a numeric code, the map overlays are labeled with specific geographic areas. Geographic areas include Jawbone Ridge, Ascension Mountain, Cherry Lake South, Kinsley, Cherry Lake North, Feliciana Mountain, Buckingham Mountain, El Portal, Ackerson Mountain, Lake Eleanor, Kibbie Lake, Cooper Peak, Hetch Hetchy Reservoir, Til Till Mountain, Copper Peak, Fish Camp, Wawona, El Capitan, Tamarack Flat, Mariposa Grove, White Chief Mountain, Mariposa Grove, Half Dome, Yosemite Falls, Ten Lakes, Piute Mountain, Tower Peak, Pickle Mountain, Pickle Meadow, Little Shuteye Peak, Sing Peak, Merced Peak, Tenaya Lake, Falls Ridge, Matterhorn Peak, Buckeye Ridge, Fales Hot Spring, Timber Knob, Mount Lyell, Vogelsang Peak, Tioga Pass, Dunderberg Peak, Twin Lakes, Mount Jackson, Mt. Lyell, Cattle Mountain, Mount Ritter, Koip Peak, Mount Dana, Lundy, Big Alkalai, Crystal Crag, Mammoth Mountain, June Lake, and Lee Vining.

Map overlays are arranged by numeric code with a folder of non-labeled preliminary vegetation overlays located at the beginning of the sub-subseries.

Sub-subseries 5: Aerial Photography, 1992-1994, 1997 (bulk dates: 1997)
7.50 LF

This sub-subseries contains 10" x 10" aerial photographic negative film, 10" x 10" aerial photographic positive film, and maps.

The aerial photography sub-subseries is arranged into two sections: aerial positives and aerial negatives. The aerial positives and aerial negatives are organized numerically by code within their sections. Of note are the two folders containing oversize maps associated with the aerial photography grid and vegetation plots, located at the beginning of the sub-subseries.

SERIES XII: MAPS, PLANS, and DRAWINGS, 1941-2005 (bulk:1996-1999)
60 Maps

This series is comprised of maps, plans, and drawings from the Natural Resource Management and Science Division. Most of the maps were given to the archives from the Branch of Geographic Information Sciences which handles cartography for park projects. Approximately 26 maps and plans from accession YOSE 0699 are being accreted into EPC, D&E, and Collection 1020.

This series is being arranged alphabetically by map title. The maps are then located in oversize folders by type and size of material and then placed in flat files. Two maps are too large for the flat files and are located on Roll 3.
